How much do I give my pet?

LiveGood's chart by weight: cats 5 lbs and over get 1/4 scoop every other day; dogs 10 to 35 lbs get 1/2 scoop daily; dogs 36 to 75 lbs get 1 scoop daily; dogs 76 lbs and over get 2 scoops daily. Mix it into wet food or moistened kibble. Each tub holds 30 scoops.

Because the scoop is fiber-rich, start with a small pinch and build up to the full serving over about a week to avoid loose stools.

What is in it?

Each scoop (about 4.5 g) has vitamins A (as beta carotene), C, D3, E and the B complex in active forms, 2,000 mg organic inulin, 1,200 mg organic pumpkin, 600 mg organic flaxseed (omega-3 and 6), spirulina, apple cider vinegar, kelp, a four-enzyme digestive blend, 1.25 billion CFU of probiotics and 5 mg CoQ10. It is certified USDA Organic by Global Organic Alliance.

Is it a complete multivitamin and mineral?

No. It is a vitamin, fiber, enzyme and probiotic formula with no added minerals, so it works on top of a complete pet food. Its omegas come from flax, not fish oil, and cats cannot turn beta carotene into vitamin A, so cats still need vitamin A from their food.

How much does it cost?

With a LiveGood membership on Subscribe and Save it is $14.20 a tub, about 47 cents a scoop. The member price is $14.95 and retail is $29.95. A tub lasts a month for a 36 to 75 lb dog, about two weeks for a dog over 76 lbs, and many months for a cat.

Who should check with the vet first?

Check with your vet first if your pet has kidney, thyroid or digestive issues, eats a prescription diet, takes medication, is pregnant or nursing, or is a puppy or kitten. Your vet knows your pet's full diet and can confirm this fits.

How long until I notice anything?

Appetite and energy changes, if any, tend to show within a couple of weeks. Coat changes take a month or more as new fur grows in. Results vary from pet to pet.

What if my pet will not eat it or does not respond?
